

REDEEMER'S CLUB by Stuart Wilde © 2009

Lesson 2: The Grail

Dear Member,

Thank you so much for joining the Redeemer's Club package. I am so happy you and the others have come.

It has been a very long and strange journey for me over the years; only a few people went with me into those trans-dimensional worlds. We might have been some of the first people to ever do it as what we discovered is very strange and different and very beautiful. To be able to share it all now is a wonderful gift and a very great pleasure. I feel like a tour guide of a great and ancient city that is proud to show his or her city to visitors and to watch them marvel at the place.

The Morph worlds and the celestial dimensions are like an ancient city in that they are very real, more real than life itself. To have others go around those places with me is an honor I never expected in this life. But to see the Morph and those other worlds you have to understand the concepts and make a turn within yourself and so this package is the vital first step.

In the past I have always been a bit crippled by an inhibition that came from writing for a public audience. I would often agonize over what to include and what to leave out, though I must say, while I never wrote anything that wasn't one hundred percent accurate within the limits of my perception, but when writing I did leave out critical codes or the final methodology.

Or, I would spin something into a rhetorical 'wideness' that allowed for the reader to go any one of several different ways. I never said it should be left or right, or up the center. I left them to choose one path or the other, or none at all. But you can understand how eventually that became tedious. It was like giving away free tickets to the ballet and never quite mentioning where the performance is to be held.

So now I am going to show you things in these lessons that only a handful of people in this world know about that even fewer understand. Each thing I'll teach you or show you is verifiable, so you will be able to test it out for yourself. In this way, it is always kept very fair for you will not just have to take my word for it, you will be able to test it out for yourself and take your own word for it.

I show how the Grail is not a bloodline or a chalice; it is a dimension of stunning beauty. I will show you what it looks like, if that is your wish, and you will be able to hold a small part of it in your hand. You will see it for yourself. And while you may not exactly understand it all at first, it will be there nonetheless. You won't be able to keep it, but that is not important, for once you know where it is and what it looks like, you can come back later and be a part of it whenever you want to.

Now here is something that almost nobody knows that maybe is a little difficult to accept, but once you know the Grail is yours, and once you know for certain you are worthy of the Grail;

you will come forward in great humility and reverence, and you will bow and make a short speech of thanks, and you will mention the great blessing that is the warmth of eternity you now feel in your heart and soul and you will decline to accept the Grail and walk away.

This Grail legend is very real but it is way more intricate and delicate than was ever imagined. Suffice to say, once you can truly claim it, you will naturally, from the benevolence you feelings for all things, want to leave it for another. You will walk away.

As you walk away there is a long silence and then you will see sparkles in the distance and gradually they will come around you like colored fireflies of immense beauty and liveliness. And as that effect grows stronger and stronger, they all merge to become a patch of violet light and it recedes from you and burst into many more colored lights that seem like fireworks in the night sky. Then you will see another patch of violet light, and it will also recede and burst into many light forms and this will go on and on for days and days, weeks even.

Then eventually it all goes calm again and you will sit by a stream and you will wonder if you are the stream; is it inside you or are you inside it? And you'll watch an animal on the hill in the distance and you will ask if it is inside you or outside of you? Is it possible that you are the animal? Because now you can feel its sentiments in your heart, and when it moves you can feel that movement inside you, and when it wants something you can feel that as well. And when it laughs you also laugh.

And a little while later you will see a strange blue light leaving your hands like mini lightning bolts, and you will be able to roll that light between your fingers, and you'll play and make circular shapes of the light hovering them in the air dropping them from one hand to the other. Eventually you'll know how to make them a little bigger and you will leave them in the street at about two feet above the pavement, and you will watch children walk through them, and you will be in awe. For each child that finds that light, as if by accident, and walks through it, the light you left for them, will also find the Grail one day as you did. You probably can't remember but when you were three or four or maybe five, it happened to you.

Then you will wonder what to do next and a silence follows and eventually a tall being comes out of the aluna, mirror-world and stands a little way off. And maybe the first time you will feel a little unsure, as perhaps you have never met anyone that is not from this world. And then he or she will melt from your perception and soon you will yearn for them and wonder why they left. And a while later others come, and they also stand a little way off but closer now, and eventually one comes up behind you and taps you lightly in the center of the top of your head and they will say "Come now, there is something in Zambia that I want to show you that will interest you a great deal."

And you will hesitate for a moment or two then you will go to Zambia or wherever your karma dictates, and a very great destiny will be there waiting for you, a destiny that has waited all of your life for you to arrive. A destiny that is like the sparkles of light you first saw all those years ago by the banks of the stream, the sparkles that came after you graciously declined the Grail, but now the sparkles are ten thousand times more powerful.

Then many years later after you have served, you will be walking in a desert at sunset with some animals that seem to have been following you about for a while, and in the distance you will see people. At first you won't understand what on earth they are doing there, and as you walk towards them you will gradually realize there are many hundreds of them. And as you further adjust to the haze of the desert light you will see thousands of them walking towards you as if out of a mirage. And then the crowd seems to grow ever larger, and you are shocked to try to comprehend as you realize in the distance are hundreds of thousands of people, a million or more, maybe.

Joyful people, gentle in their ways, dancing and celebrating; calling to you from a distance with a strange clicking sound that you have never heard before; a clicking that seems almost next to your ear and singing as well. And as the gap closes you will realize from your feelings that they are all people that when they heard "Come now..." rose up out of their chair and walked away as you did, all to arrive mysteriously at the same place at the same moment in space and time from one million different directions.

It is a lot more beautiful than I can describe but I am sure you get the drift of it...it becomes more clear as we go along.

Sincerely,

Stuart Wilde